LIBS IN TURMOIL AS HOLLYWOOD COMEDIANS TURN DOWN OFFER OF LEADERSHIP ROLE.

MEL BROOKS, DANNY DE VITO AND JERRY SEINFELD REPORTEDLY REFUSE ANY ROLE OF LEADERSHIP IN OPPOSITION OFFER

Canberra - A leaked memo from the national headquarters of the Liberal Party has disclosed how an offer was made to funny men, Mel Brooks, Danny De Vito and Jerry Seinfeld, inviting one of them to consider leading the Liberal Party as it struggled to keep it's sides from splitting.

A spokesman for the Hollywood trio has reportedly rejected the offer, stating that their writers could never, in any way, produce comedy of the type that has been issuing forth from the Australian capital since the liberals lost the last election.

Mel Brooks is reported to have stated that he wished he'd had the libs working on his 'Blazing Saddles' script.

"These guys are hilarious" quipped Brooks. "You just don't get comedy like this every day. All these guys have missing are the red noses", he laughed

Meanwhile, efforts are being made to form the 'Dream Team' with Peter Costello and Tony Abbott.

Jerry Seinfeld seemed doubtful about this match though.

"A comedy duo called Abbott & Costello? Now there's a team that would work in Canberra", said the stand-up star.

Meanwhile, only time will tell who'll be on 1st base.

Take care of those pesky varmints, 4 legs or 2. The results are always the same. Satisfying!
