EBENEZER GANG LEADER STILL SPREADING FEAR

DIPLOMATS SCURRY IN AN EFFORT TO QUELL FEARS BY THAI AUTHORITIES

Special report by Editor-in-Chief and former Ebenezer gang member,
The Kokoda Kid.

June 1st, 2014 - I can recall the first time I met the Ebenezer Kid. He came up to me, with tears in his eyes, saying "It's a boy! It's a boy!" He swore there and then that it would be the last time he picked up someone in a bar in Thailand.

Well, the Kid just returned to Thailand and we can only hope that he picks the right bar this time or at least the right girl.

The thing is though, Thailand went into immediate lock-down. The media is describing recent events in Thailand as a military coup. Let me tell you though. This was no coup.

This was the reaction of the Thai government going into panic mode when they discovered that the Ebenezer Kid was returning to the country.

It's the same reason that the Australian PM recently cancelled a visit to Indonesia, after claiming that he had work that needed his urgent attention back home. Tiny Rabbit was fearful of the backlash he would have to face from the Indonesian government because of the news that Ebenezer would be in that region of the world. At least the PM would be safe at home, as long as he stayed away from universities and probably the public in general.

As I sit here in this dark, dank cold place, writing about Ebenezer and drinking bitter, disgusting, cold

THE EBENEZER KID

coffee, surrounded by those of whom I best not pay too much attention to if I value my safety, I realise that here at the pistol club is probably not the best place to write a story.

Meanwhile, let's get back to Ebenezer. He's a little different from the rest of us. While we mix our bourbon with coke, he shows us how it's really done. He drinks his coke straight. There's no mixing bourbon with his soda!

Hail to the mighty Ebenezer Kid!

- Amen.

DID YOU KNOW?

On September 8, 1883, Sitting Bull, the main chief of the Lakota tribes, delivered a speech at the celebration of the driving of the last spike in the Northern Pacific railroad joining with the transcontinental system. He delivered the speech in his Sioux language, departing from a speech originally prepared by an army translator. Denouncing the U.S. government, settlers, and army, the listeners thought he was welcoming and praising them. While giving the speech, Sitting Bull paused for applause periodically, bowed, smiled, and continued insulting his audience as the translator delivered the original address.

The Long Branch Saloon really did exist in Dodge City, Kansas. One of the owners, William Harris, was a former resident of Long Branch, New Jersey and named the saloon after his hometown in the 1880's. The Long Branch Saloon still exists in Dodge City and can be seen at Dodge City's Boothill Museum.
