AUSTRALIAN PRIME MINISTER AND AUSTRALIAN KNIGHTHOODS

Tiny Rabbit reconsiders his choice of Australian Knights after a heavy backlash

Canberra, January 30th, 2015 :

In a dramatic turnaround by the Tiny Rabbit government, this paper can now report (yes, we can now 'report' stuff, just like the TV channels can) that the Australian PM has re-considered his proposal to give a knighthood to Prince Phillip, stating that it may be embarrassing for the Prince to be addressed as 'Sir Prince Phillip'.

One of the choices of Australian knighthoods chosen by PM Tiny Rabbit was originally meant to go to Queen Elizabeth II, but he decided that 'Sir Queen Elizabeth' would have sounded funnier than his choice of Prince Phil.

Mr. Rabbit also said that he could not imagine how Sir Queen Lizzie would look in a suit of armour, so he shifted his choice to the Prince.

Venturing into a new line of thinking, the PM decided to accept the wishes of the public and select a true blue Australian, by announcing that his latest choice would be Skippy, the Bush Kangaroo.

Mr. Rabbit was moved to tears when told that Skippy was no longer with us and the PM was forced to cut short the interview as he attempted to regain his emotions.

It was rumoured at one stage that Ginger Meggs was also on Mr. Rabbit's short list.

PM UNDER THREAT ON LEADERSHIP CHALLENGE

Canberra, February 13th, 2015

In another dramatic turn in the political arena today, it has been revealed that some senior Liberal Party members have been in touch with an outsider in a bid to oust Tiny Rabbit in the ongoing leadership row.

In a leaked story to the Dry Gulch Gazette, it is believed that some disenchanted party members have approached Krusty the Clown, who appears in the TV series, The Simpsons and have asked him to put his hat in the ring in the current leadership rumblings.

Those involved have stated that although things probably wouldn't change much as far as policy and the utterances of dumb statements go, at least people would get a laugh out of Krusty.

Krusty's choice of clothes would also be a welcome change from 'budgie smugglers' and lycra.

Agents for Krusty say that he is considering the offer, but at this stage, he is uncertain just how he could come up with stories and situations that even come close to some of the antics played out by Mr. Rabbit.

"I think I'll just sit back here with my bottle of booze and enjoy the show" Krusty told the Gazette.

SECRET DEAL LEAKS OUT BETWEEN PM AND MEMBER FOR McMAHON

Blacktown, February 19th 2015.

In yet another leak from Canberra, it has been revealed that in a bid to get votes during the recent leadership spill, the member for McMahon, in western Sydney, had been approached quietly by Prime Minister, Tiny Rabbit and was promised a fleet of new boats for the Wet 'n' Wild theme park at Prospect.

It is alleged that in an effort to quell disquiet in certain areas of the shipbuilding industry in South Australia and as compensation for any submarine building which supposedly has been promised to the Japanese shipbuilding company, Wesinkee-Yoo, the South Australians have been offered the contract to build all the theme park's boats and canoes.

When asked to respond to the claims, Mr. Rabbit would neither confirm or deny them, stating that it could be worse if the submarines were to have been made in China.

Take care of those pesky varmints, 4 legs or 2. The results are always the same. Satisfying!

WINCHESTER SOLUTIONS.

DID YOU KNOW?

1 - Despite Hollywood's depiction to the contrary, Jesse and Frank James were never cowboys. Both were raised on a farm in Missouri, where many of their crimes occurred.

2 - Henry Wells, of the famous Wells Fargo and Company freight line never lived any further West than Buffalo, New York.

3 - Jesse James was called "Dingus" by his friends.

4- The last Old West outlaw of renown to die "on the job" was Henry Starr, who began his career as a bandit in 1893 and led a gang of mounted outlaws for more than twenty-five years. Starr's career finally ended on February 18, 1921, when he was shot to death trying to rob a bank in Harrison, Arkansas.

5 - During these old west times a gunfighter was also known as a "leather slapper," a "gun fanner," "gun trapper," "bad medicine," "curly wolf," and a "shootist."

6 -The telephone was invented in 1876. The first community to have a telephone after the White House telephone was installed was Deadwood, South Dakota
